SYNOPSIS

Educational, training and life-long learning are key components for any industry aiming to move ahead, grow and improve in the 21st century (the buzz words' new millenium). This presentation looks at the Australian Federal Government's approach to developing a National training system to establish recognised qualifications for all industries across all states. In particular, this presentation will outline the development of Greyhound Training programmes in Victoria, as well as looking at the benefits of linking licensing to training.
